Juan Pablo Patiño Arango

In 2006, I was born in the municipality of La Ceja, Antioquia. I was blessed with a very loving family and unconditional health. During this first stage of my life, I was very cared for and protected. The only incident I had was being born with six toes on my right foot, but it was removed a few days later.

My first surgery

In 2012, I achieved my first triumph: winning the award for excellence at my school. It was a source of pride for both me and my family, as I was able to show my effort, dedication, and above all, the support I always received. I was greatly congratulated and surrounded by love.

My first trip

In 2020, the world changed in a way I never imagined. The COVID-19 pandemic marked the beginning of a very uncertain and difficult time. From one day to the next, everything shut down, classes became virtual, and going outside became limited. At first, it was confusing and even a little scary because we didn't know how long it would last or how it would affect us.

In 2010, I faced a new health challenge: my first surgery. Although it wasn't a complicated procedure and everything turned out well, at the time, I was very scared. The surgery was for my tonsils and adenoids. After the procedure, I woke up very frightened, but I recovered quickly and in good health.

In 2015, I had my first big travel surprise: I got to see the ocean! It was fascinating because the experience of flying for the first time and seeing the ocean, which had only been a dream until that moment, became a reality. I enjoyed it a lot with my family; it was an unforgettable experience

In the present, I am a very happy person. I am pursuing a technology degree in software analysis and development, which I plan to homologate in the future to pursue engineering. After that, I want to specialize in machine learning. Honestly, the career is difficult, but I am moving forward without giving up.
